New announcement for Korea Safety Requirement update

Friday, August 01, 2014

One important point is that also DC powered products are being subject to KC-mark certification or ‘Suppliers Conformity Certification’) depending on the type of product. For some specified types of products (such as electrical blankets, motors in household appliances, electrical tools and wireless communication equipment), this new requirement was made effective immediately, whereas for other products it will be effective from 1 August 2015.

One point of relaxation is that is now possible to list multiple factories in one KC-certificate. This change is given immediate effect.

The official announcement and a summary in English as well as the full list of the concerned products may be provided on request.
